BILL NYE ON THE RUM QUESTION. Gentile Damnation and Mormon

Valley Tan Discounted in Maine. Rum has always been a curse to the State of Maine. The steady fight that Maine has made for a century past against decent rum has been worthy of a better

Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? and some more things of that kind? He that monkeyeth with Maine rum; he that goeth to seek emigrant rum.

In Denver your friend says: "Will you come with me and shed a tear?" or "Come and eat a clove with me."

In Salt Lake City a man once said to me: William, which would you rather do, take a dose of Gentile damnation down here on the corner, or go over across the street and pizen yourself with across the street and pizen yourself with some real old Mormon Valley tan, made last week from ground feed and prussic acid?" I told him that I had just been to dinner, and the doctor had forbidden my drinking any more, and that I had promised several people on their death-beds never to touch liquor, and besides I had just taken a large drink, so he would have to excuse me.

But in Maine none of these common styles of invitation prevail. It is all shrouded in mystery. You give the sign of distress to any member in good stand-ing, pound three times on the outer gate, give two hard kicks and one soft one on the inner door, give the password, "Ruth-erford B. Hayes," turn to the left, through a dark passage, turn the thumbscrew of a mysterious gas fixture ninety degrees to the right, holding the goblet of the encampment under the gas fixture, then reverse the thumbscrew, shut your eyes, insult your digester, leave 25 cents near the gas fixture, and hunt up the nearest cemetery, so that you will not have to be carried very far. If a man really wants to drink himself into a drunkard's grave, he can certainly save time by going to Maine. Those de-siring the most prompt and vigorous style of jim-jams at cut rates, will do well to examine Maine goods before going elsewhere. Let a man spend a week in Boston, where the Maine liquor law, I understand, is not in force, and then, with no warning whatever, be taken into the Takets for all points East and West can be presented at the Depot Office and City Ticket heart of Maine; let him land there a stranger and a partial orphan, with no knowledge of the underground methods of securing a drink, and to him the world seems very gloomy, very sad, and ex-

At the Bangor depot a woman came up to me and addressed me. She was rather past middle age, a perfect lady in her manners, but a little full. I said: "Madam, I guess you will have to excuse me. You have the advantage. I can't just speak your name at this moment. It has been now thirty years since I left Maine, a child two years old. So people have changed. You've no idea how people have grown out of my knowledge. I don't see but you look just as young as you did when I went

Men have been known to get intoxicated and come a long distance to talk with me on some subject, and then they would lean up against me and converse by the hour. A drunken man never seems to get tired of talking with me. As long as I am willing to hold such a man up and listen to him, he will stand and tell me about himself with the utmost confidence, and no matter who goes by he does not seem to be ashamed to have people see him talking with me. I once had a friend who was very much liked by every one, so he drifted into occasion for such a thing, but possibly politics. For seven years he tried to live there may be before fall.—Hartford Couron free whisky and popular approval, but it wrecked him at last. Finally, he formed the habit of meeting me every day and explaining it to me, and giving me free exhibitions of a breath that he had acquired at great expense. After he got so feeble that he could not walk any more, this breath of his used to pull him out of bed and drag him all over town.

It seems hardly possible, but it is so. I can show you the town yet.

If I had a son, I would warn him against trying to subsist solely on popular approval and free whisky. It may do for a man engaged solely in sedentary pur-suits, but it is not sufficient in cases of great muscular exhaustion. Free whisky and popular approval on an empty stom-ach are highly injurious.

Mr. Beecher's Latest Creed. Rev. George Morrison, of Baltimore, has received the following letter from Rev. Henry Ward Beecher: "I thank you for your friendly solicitude. I am sure that in the end you will not be disappointed, though on some points you may not agree with me. The foundation doctrines, as I hold them, are a Personal God, a Creator, and Ruler over all things; the human family universally sinful; the need and possibility and facts of conversion; the divine agency in such a work Jesus Christ, the manifestation of God in human conditions; His office in redemp-tion supreme. I do not believe in the Calvinistic form of stating the atonement. I do not believe in the fall of the human race in Adam, and of course I do not hold that Christ's work was to satisfy the law broken by Adam for all his posterity. The race was not lost, but has been ascending steadily since creation. I am in hearty accord with revivals and revival preach ing, with the educating forces of the church, and in sympathy with all minis ters who in their several ways seek to build up men into the image of Jesus Christ—by whose faithfulness, generosity and love I hope to be saved and brought home to heaven. My sermons as published in the daily papers I am not responsible for. They are fragments, and often utterly incorrect. - Baltimore Amer-

ONE OF LOWELL'S JOKES,

The Secret of John Eussell's Success at the Court of St. James.

Coming home to America, where the restless and nervous activity of the people quickens men's faculties and perceptions, James Russell Lowell falls into the rear rank of after-dinner orators with great ease. At Harvard the other day, where Tom Hendricks was shedding his offulgant, originality, all around, and where rom richaricks was shedding his effulgent originality all around, and where numerous other sharp-witted gentlemen were effervescing with wit and humor, anecdote and story, Mr. Lowell had the bad taste to work off an old disciplination the convenients. chestnut on the company that must have cast a gloom over the festivities. The story about the good doctor who read the proclamation of the first Democratic Governor of Massachusetts, and after pronouncing the official's name and title since laid away in the boneyard, where all good stories must go.

The Herald is surprised that Mr. Lowell should risk his reputation on such an ancient and honorable joke where the presence of many bright minds was anough to have incomed him. presence of many origin minds was enough to have inspired him to better things. His speech on this occasion be-trays the secret of his great success in England. He had treasured up a few hundred bald-headed American stories, and during the last six years he has been palming them off on the Britishers as new. A joke is never fully appreciated in England until it is three score and ten, and for that reason Lowell's ripe old jests have made him famous where San Company where some and the state of the have made him famous where Sam Cox would not have been able to have gained a respectful hearing.

It is not pleasant to destroy this idol of two continents, but a solemn duty to the public necessitates it. Mr. Lowell has, in vulgar parlance, given himself away, and, as he ambles away in company with the decrepit joke about the Governor of Massachusetts, he confesses himself a rank impostor. We have found him out. -Chicago Herald.

The Bridal Bathing Dress. This is from the New York World: The recent introduction of bridal bathing dresses promises to give piquancy this year to the shore at Long Branch. They are worn en train, the bridal veil being of delicate green and suggestive of sea algae Sponge trimmings and delicate mussel-shell borders have been discarded because they were found to be too heavy in the water. A very neat device, however, has been introduced in the shape of an india rubber underskirt and chemisette, which is admirably calculated to protect the per-son from contact with the water while bathing. These garments now come beautifully woven and stamped in pic torial devices, representing Aphrodite rising from the sea, and other aquatic sports of the fancy." A "bridal bathing dress" is indeed a novelty. And a rubber dress which "protects the person while bathing," is the most startling novelty of all. Why bathe?

Madame Modjeska has created considerable sensation on the other side by a speech delivered before the curtain in Dublin, in which she described Poland as away, but I'm a poor hand to remember names, so I can't just call you to mind."

She was perfectly ladylike in her manner, but a bit drunk. It is singular how drunken people will come hundreds of miles to converse with me. I have been alluded to as the "drunkard's friend."
